Cookie Policy

OneAll.com (the "OneAll Site") and any sub-domains of this domain (collectively the "OneAll Platform") may use cookies to help you in your interactions and enhance your user experience.

What are cookies?

Cookies are small files placed on your computer's hard drive, or in your browser memory, when you visit the OneAll Platform. It helps us speed things up for you when you come back. It tells us what parts of the site you visit, what you like and what's most relevant to you.

Our cookies do not store any personal or confidential information about you and are used for analysis only. To make sure you get the best from our website, we advise that users keep cookies active on their machine whilst visiting the OneAll Platform.

Session cookies

The OneAll Platform mostly uses session cookies, which last only for the duration of your visit and are deleted when you close your browser. No personal data is collected.

These cookies simply enable us to identify that the same person is moving from one page to another. We store and collect a unique identifier to track your session from page to page via session cookies.

This is important to understand our customers' experience as you move around the OneAll Platform.

Persistent cookies

We also use certain cookies that are persistent, meaning that they may last beyond your session. These cookies enable us to enhance your user-experience when you return to the OneAll Platform at a later point in time.

We use the free Google Analytics tool to collect and analyse site statistics. Google Analytics uses persistent cookies to track data. These cookies do not collect any personally identifiable information and are only used for the statistical collection of data such as visits and page hits.

The Google Analytics cookies store IP addresses but the OneAll Platform cannot link those addresses to any individual or path through the website.

Google uses the cookies to read information and evaluate the visitors' use of the OneAll Platform in the form of statistical reports that we can access.

The Google Analytics code is incorporated into the code of the OneAll Platform so that it serves the cookies, but Google has access to these cookies too.

Additional information

Most browsers automatically accept cookies and you should be able to accept, delete or reject them if you wish by adjusting the settings on your browser. This will, however, affect your use of the areas the OneAll Platform that use cookies.

From time to time, we may embed, or our services may be used to embed external content from third party websites (Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn ..).

These websites may use cookies and the privacy policy that will apply to such third-party content will be published on the website of the third-party content provider.

Throughout the OneAll Platform we provide links to third party websites. If you choose to visit one of those, you should refer to the cookie policy of that website as OneAll does not take responsibility for third party sites.

Opting Out

You can block all cookies through your browser - however, you may find that this reduces your browsing experience. For further information about managing and disabling cookies, you can refer to your browser's help or to the All About Cookies Guide (<http://www.allaboutcookies.org/>) which explains to users how cookies work, can be managed and blocked by all browser types.
